History

The Saturday Reading Club was founded in 1896 by a group of seven women whose meetings were characterized by close friendships and a love of literature and learning, a tradition which was followed for 101 years until its disbanding in 1997. Awards were provided to Woodstock students for many years to commemorate the efforts of the early members.

Selection Process

Recipient to be determined by the Principal/designate and the appropriate staff member/s of the Languages Department.
